

Pat McLaughlin is a freelance consultant based in Ireland where he now shares his international work in education with writing children's books. Pat is an experienced teacher, trainer, textbook specialist and consultant who has worked at Primary and Secondary, as well as tertiary, levels in some 42 countries across the world. He has worked on under- and post-graduate courses in Education and TESOL with universities in the UK and developed and led a new MA in TESOL at the University of Gloucestershire. His work has included involvement in a number of international projects, his most recent one with the British Council in India, where he was Team Leader of the Asian Development Bank-funded Supporting Human Capital Development in Meghalaya programme. Pat, a frequent visitor to Turkey, worked as ELT Adviser at METU in in the late 1980s and is currently on his 5th visit over the past year to the country in connection with the British Council's QDP initiative.